About Us

- International Accreditation Federation Accreditation Bodies (IAF-AB) is an international association for accreditation.
- Accreditation is an independent evaluation and approval process for organizations or programs that deliver a specific type of service. The evaluation is done against recognised standards to ensure fairness and competence.
- Accreditation agencies are private organizations that develop the evaluation criteria and conduct peer evaluations to assess whether or not those criteria are met properly. IAF-AB with its highly trained taskforce, external peer and expert reviewers evaluate an organization's conformance with pre-established performance to ensure that the best products and services are provided for the end user.
- Accreditation bodies are established in many countries with the primary purpose of ensuring that conformity assessment bodies are subject to oversight by an authoritative body. Accreditation bodies sign arrangements that enhance the acceptance of products and services across national borders, thereby creating a framework to support international trade through the removal of technical barriers.
- These arrangements are managed by the International Accreditation Forum (IAF-AB), in the fields of management systems, products, services, personnel and other similar programmes of conformity assessment, and the International Laboratory Accreditation, in the field of laboratory and inspection accreditation.
